From what I know, Art is a beautiful way of expression through canvasses, paper, music, or even clay. Drawing is relevant to contemporary art practice because it essentially is a basis for creating the form of objects or people. Also Drawing helps with being able to understand shading and lighting. My favorite art piece that I have made in this class is my shell. When making the shell I was just looking for a subject to draw and I didn't really expect it to turn out well, but the more I drew the more invested I was in adding details and making sure the shade and texture were just right, so when I completed the piece I was so proud of how well I did.
